

Human Development in the Global South

Emerging Perspectives in the Era of Post-Millennium Development Goals

editors

Tanuka Endow
Sumit Mazumdar
Mitu Sengupta

INSTITUTE FOR HUMAN DEVELOPMENT

MANAK
Publications Pvt. Ltd.

About Contributors

Shiva Raj Adhikari, a PhD in Economics, teaches Economics at Tribhuvan University in Nepal. He has been involved in a number of high-profile research studies, particularly related to development economics and policy and equity in health care financing and delivery. He has published more than two dozen articles in national and international journals.

Tashrik Ahmed is a doctoral candidate in the health systems programme of the department of International Health of the Johns Hopkins University, USA. He specializes in international and domestic health information systems analysis, capacity building, and data use for evidence-based decision making.

Rashid Amjad is Professor of Economics and Director, Graduate Institute of Development Studies, Lahore School of Economics. He was Vice-Chancellor of Pakistan Institute of Development Economics (PIDE) and also served as Chief Economist and Member, Planning Commission of Pakistan. He worked for many years in the International Labour Organisation (ILO) including as Director, Policy Planning, Employment Department and Director of the regional multi-disciplinary team for Southeast Asia based in Manila. He headed the team which produced the World Employment Report 1998–99 titled “Employability in the Global Economy: How Training Matters”.

Pedro Lara de Arruda has his MA from Jawaharlal Nehru University (India) and his BA from the University of Brasilia (Brazil), both in International Relations. He currently works as an Associate Researcher at the International Policy Centre for Inclusive Growth (IPC-IG, UNDP) in Brazil. Pedro is a specialist in social policies and programmes within the context of the Global South, particularly the BRICS countries.

Sudhanshu Bhushan is Professor and Head of the Department of Higher and Professional Education at the National University of Educational Planning and Administration (NUEPA). He specialises in internationalisation of higher education, policy issues in higher education and educational planning. His recent publications include Quality Assurance of Transnational Higher Education, Public Financing and Deregulated Fees in Indian Higher Education, and Restructuring Higher Education in India. His present responsibility is to conduct and guide research and to provide policy support to the Government, UGC and the Planning Commission of India. He is the recipient of Amartya Sen Award 2012 for distinguished Social Scientist, an award instituted by Indian Council of Social Science Research.

S. Mahendra Dev is Director and Vice-Chancellor, Indira Gandhi Institute of Development Research (IGIDR) in Mumbai, India since 2010. Prior to this position, he was Chairman of the Commission for Agricultural Costs and Prices, Ministry of Agriculture, Government of India. He was Director, Centre for Economic and Social Studies, Hyderabad, India for nine years from 1999 to 2008. His main areas of interest are development economics, agricultural economics and rural development in India, South Asia, and other Asian countries.

M. Alper Dinçer, a PhD in Economics and Education from Columbia University, has contributed to issues relating to education, immigration and health. For the last three years he has been working at Education Reform Initiative, Sabanci University. Mr. Dinçer has been focusing on education policy issues in Turkey.

Tanuka Endow is a Fellow at the Institute for Human Development, New Delhi. She has extensively worked and published in the area of education and skills. She has been a consultant to some important multi country projects on education funded by UNICEF and DFID. She has contributed to Delhi Human Development Report 2014 and was its Associate Editor.

Arun Gupta, a paediatrician turned activist, is leading the Asian part of International Baby Food Action Network (IBFAN), which is a 1998 Right Livelihood Award recipient. He is also a member of the 'Prime Ministers Council for India's Nutrition Challenges'. He chose to give up lucrative private practice in 1990s, to put child nutrition on forefront of social change challenging the corporate interference in policy matters and has written extensively on these issues. He is the creator of IBFAN's World Breastfeeding Trends Initiative (WBTi), a breakthrough tool to measure policy inputs and now World Breastfeeding Costing Initiative (WBCi) to cost and plan interventions.

Indrani Gupta is Professor and Head, Health Policy Research Unit, Institute of Economic Growth, Delhi. She is a member of the Technical Review Panel of the Global Fund for AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria and the WHO Southeast Asia Advisory Committee on Health Insurance. She has also been a consultant at the Policy Research Unit of the World Bank from 1991 to 1995 and a research analyst at the Bureau of Business and Economic Research, University of Maryland in 1991. She has written a number of reports and research papers on health and health technologies.

S.R. Hashim is Chairman, Institute for Human Development, Chairman of Indian Association of Social Science Institutions (IASSI) and President of Forum for Global Knowledge Sharing. During his long professional career spanning nearly 50 years, he has held high positions in academics as well as in government — economic administration and diplomacy. He was Member and Member-Secretary, Planning Commission; Ambassador of India to Kazakhstan, Member and Chairman, Union Public Service Commission of India. He has extensively worked and written on issues relating to poverty and inequality, water and agriculture and small-scale industries.

Indira Hirway is Director and Professor of Economics at Centre for Development Alternatives, Ahmedabad. Her research areas are development related issues, employment and labour, poverty and human development, environment and development, time use studies and gender studies. She has published numerous research papers in reputed Indian and international journals and books in these areas.

Rizwanul Islam is former Special Adviser, Employment Sector, International Labour Office, Geneva. He has been in various Directorial positions at the ILO and is currently a Visiting Professor at the Institute for Human Development, New Delhi. He holds a PhD in Economics from the London School of Economics and Political Science. Dr. Islam specialises in development economics with particular focus on employment, poverty and income distribution, and has published a number of books and articles in peer-reviewed journals and edited volumes. His forthcoming book titled Employment and Inclusive Development (written jointly with Iyanatul Islam of the ILO) is scheduled for publication by Routledge, London, in early 2015.

Cheng Jie is a faculty at the Institute of Population and Labour Economics, Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, Beijing. His research interests include social security, income distribution, migration, poverty alleviation and rural development.

Surinder S. Jodhka is Professor of Sociology at the Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi. He has published widely on the subjects of rural and agrarian change, caste in contemporary India, and social/cultural identities. His publications include Caste in Contemporary India (Routledge 2015); Interrogating India's Modernity (ed. OUP 2013), Caste: Oxford India Short Introductions (OUP 2012), Village Society (ed. Orient Blackswan 2012), Community and Identities: Contemporary Discourses on Culture and Politics in India (ed. Sage 2001). He is among the first recipients of the ICSSR-Amartya Sen Award for Distinguished Social Scientist.

Geeta Gandhi Kingdon holds the 'Chair of Education Economics and International Development' at the Institute of Education, University College London. Her research uses statistical analysis of data to illuminate issues of school effectiveness, gender and education, the labour market consequences of education and the political economy of education.

Dilli Raj Khanal, a former Member of Parliament and National Planning Commission of Nepal, is in research, teaching and social works simultaneously since more than 27 years after receiving PhD in Economics in 1986. He is the founder Chairman of the Institute for Policy Research and Development (IPRAD) established in 1995. He is also the founder Chairman of Institute for Development Policy Research (IDPR), established in 2010. He teaches advanced macroeconomics to the MPhil students in the Central Department of Economics at Tribhuvan University. He has published several books, policy papers and reports individually and jointly. His recent book is Contemporary Issues on Global and Nepalese Economy: Mainstreaming the Real Policy Agenda (2014). His recent writings are mainly focused on political economy based contemporary developmental issues.

Nagesh Kumar is Head, United Nations ESCAP South and South-West Asia Office, New Delhi. Previously, he was Director, Macroeconomic Policy and Development Division and Chief Economist of UNESCAP based at its headquarters in Bangkok. Before joining ESCAP in 2009, Dr. Kumar was Director-General of the Research and Information System for Developing Countries (RIS), a New Delhi based policy think-tank of the Government of India during 2002–09.

Beatriz Judice Magalhães holds a Master's degree in Anthropology and a Bachelor's degree in Economics from Federal University of Minas Gerais (UFMG) in Belo Horizonte, Brazil. She is currently Associate Researcher at the International Policy Centre for Inclusive Growth (IPC-IG, UNDP).

Wahiduddin Mahmud, a PhD in Economics, Cambridge University, has recently retired as Professor of Economics at Dhaka University. He is currently Chairman of Economic Research Group, Dhaka, a member of the UN Committee for Development Policy (UN-CDP) and Chairman of South Asia Network of Economic Research Institutes (SANEI).

Sumit Mazumdar is a Fellow at the Institute for Human Development, New Delhi, where he coordinates the Population Health Nutrition Research Programme (PHN-RP). He is a health economist, and works on financial risk protection and health shocks, social health inequalities, health behavioural aspects of non-communicable diseases and health economic evaluations. He is an Associate Editor of the Indian Journal of Human Development.

Marcelo Medeiros studies social inequality. He has training in Economics and Sociology. He is currently a researcher at IPEA, Professor at the University of Brasilia and Research Fellow of the Brazilian National Science Council. He has publications in the areas of gender, poverty, social inequality and mobility, health, education, time use, social protection and disability to his credit.

Thomas Pogge is a Leitner Professor of Philosophy and International Affairs at Yale University, New Haven. He is also Professorial Fellow at the Australian National University, Research Director at the Oslo University Centre for the Study of Mind in Nature (CSMN) and a member of the Norwegian Academy of Science. Having received his PhD in philosophy under Rawls at Harvard, Thomas Pogge has published widely on Kant and in moral and political philosophy. His recent publications include Politics as Usual (Polity 2010), Kant, Rawls, and Global Justice, Hacer justicia a la humanidad (FCE 2009), World Poverty and Human Rights, Global Justice and Global Ethics (co-edited), The Health Impact Fund (co-authored with Aidan Hollis, 2008), John Rawls: His Life and Theory of Justice (Oxford 2007) and Freedom from Poverty as a Human Right. Pogge is President of Academics Stand Against Poverty, an international network aiming to enhance the impact of scholars, teachers and students on global poverty by promoting their collaboration and outreach and by helping them turn their expertise into impact through specific intervention projects.

M. Hafizur Rahman, a faculty member at the Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg School of Public Health, USA, is a physician having more than 15 years of experience in directing health systems research and programmes in low and middle income countries. Dr. Rahman's research objectives/interests focus on improving health system's performance for the poor, protecting the poor and vulnerable against the impact of health-related shocks, developing innovations in health service provision, and accessibility and utilization of health services for the poor and vulnerable. Dr. Rahman has also been involved in clinical research with the colleagues from Johns Hopkins School of Medicine. Dr. Rahman served as Advisor and Consultant at various international organisations including the World Health Organisation (WHO) and the World Bank, Washington, D.C. He has published his research work in leading peer-reviewed scientific journals.

Mitu Sengupta is an Associate Professor in the Department of Politics and Public Administration, at Ryerson University, Toronto, Canada. She holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Toronto, and a Master of Arts and Bachelor of Arts (Honours) from McGill University. She is the head of research and development at the Centre for Development and Human Rights (CDHR), a non-governmental organisation based in New Delhi, India and a director of Academics Stand Against Poverty (ASAP), an international network, founded at Yale University, that aims to leverage the resources of academia towards the end of eradicating global poverty. She is also a Senior Visiting Fellow at the Institute for Human Development, New Delhi.

Alakh N. Sharma is presently Professor and Director of the Institute for Human Development, New Delhi. He has worked extensively in areas relating to political economy, poverty, employment and labour markets and has authored and published several books and papers on these themes. He is also the editor of the Indian Journal of Labour Economics and the Indian Journal of Human Development.

Ashleigh Kate Slingsby holds a degree in law and public policy, as well as an honours in international relations, both from the University of Cape Town, South Africa. She completed her Masters in International Relations at Jawaharlal Nehru University, India. She is currently associated with the Knowledge Management at the International Policy Centre for Inclusive Growth.

Ravi Srivastava is Professor of Economics in Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi. His current major research interests include social protection, labour and migration, informal economies, poverty, human development, decentralisation and economics of education and health. He has published widely, both in India and abroad, on these subjects. He has been working on rights-based development issues. He was a member of the National Commission for Enterprises in the Unorganised Sector (NCEUS), an independent Commission set up by the Government of India, which, among other wide ranging recommendations, proposed a rights-based social security scheme for all informal workers in India.

Shoba Suri is a Policy and Programme Coordinator Breastfeeding Promotion Network of India (BPNI). Dr. Shoba Suri is a nutritionist with more than 17 years of experience in research, based in Delhi, with Doctorate in Nutrition and Physiology from Bharathiar University, Coimbatore. She has more than 35 research publications to her credit.

Upali Wickramasinghe, a PhD in Economics from the University of Hawaii, is currently working as the Regional Adviser on Poverty Reduction and Food Security at the United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (UNESCAP). He has extensive experience in providing policy advice on food security, poverty reduction and sustainable agriculture. Currently his main focus is on strategies for integrating smallholder agricultural households with local, national and regional markets and their food security links and implications. He has previously worked as Professor of Economics at the University of Sri Jayewardenepura in Sri Lanka, a Policy and Programme Development Consultant at the FAO Regional Office for Asia and the Pacific in Bangkok and Economic Adviser of the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC) secretariat in Kathmandu.